“The change of society – the change of the world of communication”

The topic of the seventh edition of the Italian Eustory competition was “The change of society – the change of the world of communication”. Within this competition, the Fondazione per la Scuola received 12 research project from 12 secondary schools all over Italy for a total of 239 students involved. The deadline for submitting the projects was 31 march 2010.

Despite the better promotion of the competition direct to a larger number of schools, and even if the topic was quite general, the number of participants is a little decreased.

The most particular aspect of this competition round is that almost all the projects showed difficulties to speak about the world of communication.

The topic of the eighth edition is " The Italian unification: yesterday and today ". The next competition will start at the end of September 2010.
