Results of the 6th History Competition in the Ukraine 2007/08 "On The tracks of History"

"Famine in the Ukraine 1932-1933"

The competition was announced on the 75-th anniversary of the famine in the Ukraine. It is known, that nowadays historians explore the problem of the famine, which is socially actual and it is interpreted by different categories of people and politicians. Simultaneously, the topic of the famine in the Ukrainian history is the subject of research for the UN and the Council of Europe, and also 15 countries of the world officially acknowledged the famine in 1932-1933 as a genocide of Ukrainian people. That is why organizers reckoned, that attraction of young people to studying the topic famine in the Ukraine is important for creation their ability to research history critically and in unprejudiced way as well as for forming citizen's features.

The students were asked to hand in their entries from September 2007 until 15 March 2008. The largest amount of works was sent from those regions of the Ukraine, where that tragedy took place. The sources for writing the works were the following: testimonies of witnesses, documents of archives, museums of regional ethnography, science editions, publications, photo-video materials.

An analyze of the works point out, that the pupils often used testimonies of witnesses as their source. At the same time, taking in consideration that there is a long time frame between the famine and nowadays, the students asked those people, who spent their childhood in those times as well as the children of history witnesses. There were given recommended questions for such kind of interview in brochures, prepared for the competition. That is why it was possible to observe interesting tendencies as for answers to the same questions in different regions and between people of different age. All testimonies were fixed on different kinds of data medium.

An interesting aspect of this competition was that the students often conducted small researches between young people, they asked them if they know something about this event and about their attitude to it. The results of those researches were introduced with help of different kinds of diagrams, conclusions were made. Pictures, placates, poems were added to works.

It is necessary to mention, that a lot of projects were organized like meetings with old inhabitants or the renewal of memorials of the victims. The results of research work were often introduced in the local media.

Important source of the research were museums of regional ethnography, whose workers willingly helped pupils to organize research work and they even supplemented expositions with the materials which were gathered by the participants of the competition.

It is necessary to highly estimate the work of teachers, who organized the students research work, especially in groups, they taught them to analyze information, to compare or to make conclusions.

Organizers and experts of the competition reckon, that the competition was special in comparison with other competitions in the Ukraine. Taking into consideration positive peculiarities (for example, tight connection with the local history; active work with local inhabitants during the process of gathering of information; introducing of information in mass media), it is necessary to mention some problems, which didn't influenced on the searching process positively.

They are:

- o significant influence of teachers and school administration on the students during choosing the theme and search;
- some works had been prepared for the other competitions about the famine which were conducted in the Ukraine, the academic approach of those works was untypical for children of that age;
- the worst estimation those works got, which included only information from the Internet or from monographs and which did not reflected the students' research work.
- The topic was chosen because of the anniversary (75 years) of the start of the famine in the Ukraine and the coincidence of this topic with official and rather formal approach of state structures spoiled attraction voluntary character of the participation. It influenced in some way on the amount of delivered works, which was less.

At the same time it is important to mention that the EUSTORY competition in the Ukraine was very successful. In particular due to the European approach to studying history, offered by the participants of the competition. Those works in which critical and unprejudiced approach to the historical events, systematic work dominated, were among the winners. The ceremony at which the winners will be honored will be conducted in September,5,2008 in Kyiv House of Teacher.

The material was prepared by Petro Kendzor, project coordinator Natalya Kuschnirchuk, expert of the project
